From the Street Looking In

Monday, August 13, 2018

...artist Pamela Wilde painting a portrait in the window. Walking through town, without my camera of course, I spotted area artist Jonathan West getting his portrait painted by portraitist Pam Wilde in the window of the Artists Emporium. So I whipped out my trusty iPhone, launched my favorite go-to RAW shooting camera app and snapped off a few exposures. – then I was asked to take up Jonathan’s phone to shoot a couple for him.

That’s how this series began. Subsequently I followed Pam’s schedule and managed to get into town for most of the second half of her one hundred plus portraits, finishing up in January. Naturally I continued the with the iPhone, fascinated by the play of what was going on inside with reflections of what was happening in the street. I want to thank Pam for providing the opportunity for this fun mini-project.
